POLICE HOLD TRIO OF MEN IN 8 BURGLARIES

Total of Arrests for Week Reported To Clear Up Eleven Crimes.

LOCAL MEN IN JAIL HERE

Wyandot County Grand Jury Indicts Two of Trio.

At least eight burglaries in Marion and adjoining counties had been cleared up today by the arrest of three men and the recovery of a large quantity of loot, according to police.

The three men confessed to participation in burglaries of three filling stations, four stores in villages surrounding Marion, and a residence on Campbell road, south of here.

The men are Kenneth Turner, 23, of 744 Creston avenue, James Beaver, 24, of Creston avenue, and Marion Trimmer, 21, of Oak street. Trimmer is said to be implicated in three of the burglaries; the other two in all of the eight.

List Grows to 11

Solution of these burglaries today brought the total cleared up in the last week to 11. Last week police arrested Kermett Kunkle, 21, of 495 York street, and Stephen Sunta, 22, of 437 North Greenwood street and obtained confessions from them of participating in four burglaries, two of them in Marion county schools.

Charges of burglary of two stores at Morral Sept. 23, in which Turner, Beaver and Trimmer are implicated, were being prepared in municipal court this morning. They will be arraigned soon, probably today.

The Wyandot county grand jury yesterday indicted Turner and Beaver on charges of burglary of

NO MILK SICKNESS FOUND IN CITIES

No Danger of Product from Dairy Companies Being Affected.

Cases of milk sickness, a rare disease from which one Marion county family is suffering, probably will not occur in the city of Marion, Dr. N. Sifritt, city-county health commissioner, said today, following receipt of information on the disease from a Detroit research bureau.

"There are no recorded cases of the disease in cities, the research bureau tells us," Dr. Sifritt said. "The disease seems to be confined to farms where the people consume milk from their own herd which has become infected due to eating white snake root weed.

"Apparently milk sickness is not a problem of a large milk plant because any infected milk it may receive will be rendered harmless due to its dilution with thousands of gallons of milk from healthy cows.

"Cases on record are those of farmers whose cattle have strayed into nearby woods where they eat the weed. The cow thereby contracts a disease known as tremblies, and the toxic poisons are se-

Hawks, Air Champion.
Better Than Gold.
Germany Does Something.
Attacking Confidence.

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

WHO IS the greatest flier in America today? Capt. Frank Hawks answered the question yesterday, flying from Detroit to New York, 640 miles, in three hours.

Anybody with imagination stronger than that of a deep sea fish can realize that 640 miles in three hours is an exceptional feat today—means that everybody will fly across this continent and the Atlantic ocean in six hours before the world is 50 years older.

Capt. Hawks not only takes his place as the first flier in America, but he renders valuable service by arousing in other fliers a desire to equal or excel him.

Col. Lindbergh will not let Capt. Hawks keep the record if he can take it from him.

Whether he succeeds or not, Lindbergh will always have the public's affection. It will not forget old favorites.

DISCOVERY of a gold mine containing two or three billions of dollars in gold would be welcome news, financing the world more strongly on a gold basis.

Discovery of a mine containing millions of tons of pure copper would be of great value to industry, although it might upset stock prices.

But no mineral discovery could be as welcome or as important as the discovery, announced yesterday, of huge radium deposits at Wilberforce, Ontario.

These deposits are said to be greater than those owned by Belgium in the Congo, hitherto greatest in the world.

The name Wilberforce connected with this discovery is interesting, since Wilberforce did more than any other to abolish bodily slavery.

These great deposits of radium will help to free human beings of the curse and slavery of cancer, supplying the precious, powerful radio-active force in quantities sufficient to meet the demands of science. No discovery of gold or precious stones could mean as much.

WINS LONG FIGHT

Woman Given Citizenship Rights; Refuses to Bear Arms.

LIMA, O., Oct. 1—A woman who refused to take oath to kill in defense of the United States was a citizen today after a court battle lasting a year and a half.

Twice Mrs. Carl Landis of Philadelphia, "the nurse without a country" declined to swear that she would bear arms for the nation and was denied citizenship by Allen county courts.

Yesterday she took the oath of allegiance, still reserving her opposition to bearing arms, but swearing that she would serve as a nurse and shed her blood if necessary in time of war.

Mrs. Landis formerly was superintendent of the Bluffton, O., hospital. She came from Alsace-Lorraine, in 1910 and was married since she began her fight for citizenship.

HOOVER TOUR OPENS TODAY

Will Leave for Cleveland After Seeing First World's Series Game.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—President Hoover turned today to his long contemplated speaking trip which in the next six day will take him more than 3,000 miles into three states of the Mid-West East and South for four addresses on current national questions.

Reversing the old adage, "business before pleasure", the President arranged first to throw out the first ball and witness the opening world's series baseball game at Philadelphia, after which his speaking engagements will come in quick order, the first before the American Bankers' association convention in Cleveland.

Over 50 in Party

The President left early today for Philadelphia, more than 50 persons, including four members of his cabinet, made up the party. The President expects to leave immediately after the game for Cleveland, where tomorrow night he is to address the bankers' association.

The tour, the most extensive for the President this year, will be made in two jumps.

Returning to Washington Friday morning from Cleveland, Mr. Hoover will get under way again Sunday night for Boston, where on Monday he will make two daytime speeches, in the morning before the national convention of the American legion and in the afternoon before the American Federation of Labor.

Immediately after the second Boston speech, he will make a 21-hour swing back to King's mountain battlefield in South Carolina, just over the North Carolina border, where on Tuesday afternoon he will wind up his tour with an address at a celebration of the Sesqui-centennial of the battle of King's mountain on the revolutionary war.

Politicans Alert

Coming as they do only a month before the congressional elections, the presidential pronouncements will be scanned eagerly by candidates and their supporters throughout the country. White House officials, however, insist the speeches will be non-political. The King's mountain address, they point out, was arranged nearly a year ago.

In three of the speeches the President will be heard over nationwide radio chains. Since the one before the federation of labor will be delivered during broadcast of world series ball game, it has been arranged for William Green, president of the federation, to read it to the radio audience later.

Mrs. Hoover will not be at the game today, but will join the President in Ohio, traveling from Indianapolis, where she is attending the National Council of Girl Scouts.

DONAHUE, BROADWAY STAGE STAR, DIES

Succumbs at Home in N. Y.; Taken Ill Last Week in Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 1—Jack Donahue, musical comedy star, died at his home in Central park-west this morning.

Death was ascribed to complications. He arrived in New York last Thursday from Cincinnati, where he was forced to quit his show, "Sons o' Guns," because of illness.

At the time he made light of his illness and refused to permit any one to accompany him on the trip to New York. At that time he was said to be suffering from high blood pressure.

Donahue was 38 years old and was born in Charlestown, Mass.

His natural bent for a theatrical career manifested itself at an early age and his first appearance on the stage occurred when he was about 14 years old.

His wife, with whom he played in vaudeville, is known on the stage as Alice Stewart. There are three small daughters, nine, seven and four years old.

FAILURE TO REGISTER MEANS LOSS OF VOTE

Officials Warn That All Voters Must Visit Polls Thursday and Oct. 10, 11.

Voters who do not wish to become disfranchised should make an effort to register as early as possible on Thursday and on Oct. 10 and 11, days set aside for the statewide permanent registration, Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Donithen, legal adviser for the Marion county board of elections, warned today on the eve of the first of the three registration days.

"It doesn't matter whether or not a voter cast his ballot on primary day. If he wishes to be eligible to vote on Nov. 4 he must register either Thursday or on Oct. 10 or 11," Donithen said.

"In order to insure his eligibility, every voter living in the city of Marion ought to register as early as possible, for in the last-minute rush many will not be able to get into the booths" he said. "This would mean a loss of their right to vote on Nov. 4."

Thursday will be the first opportunity for voters to register under the new election code which is designed to eliminate frequent visits to the polls. On Thursday and on Oct. 10 and 11 such registration will be made and will be permanent in nature, thereby eliminating future general registrations every four years, according to the prosecuting attorney.

Only cities having a population of at least 16,000 will hold general registrations, although smaller cities may have such a registration if they desire the new law points out.

Predicts Heavy Turnout

Donithen predicted a heavy registration in the city on the three days in question, due to efforts of party workers to line up their forces in the coming campaign. The three-mill school levy to be voted on Nov. 4 also will bring out a heavy registration because voters will want to insure themselves of an opportunity to vote on the levy, he said.

Voters who are certain to be out of the city on the three registration days may register at the board of elections, Donithen pointed out. A number of such registrations already have been made at the election board's offices, according to C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk. Such registrations, however, must be made before Oct. 11.

Polls at the city's 42 election precincts will be open from 1 to 9 p. m. on each of the three days, thereby providing 24 hours for each precinct to register a total of from 300 to 400 voters as compared to 44 hours in previous years. This means that early registration is vital Ritzler said.

ARREST SUSPECT

Man Held in Slaying of South Bend School Girl.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 1—Henry Siwinski, 22, was arrested at his home here by a squad of eight police, including officers from South Bend, Ind., who have been investigating the slaying of Alice Woltman, South Bend school girl.

Siwinski offered no resistance to the officers who were led by Prosecuting Attorney Henry Taylor, Chief of Police S. J. Lennon and Police Captain Horace Hamilton, all of South Bend.

Police officers said a friend of the slain girl, whose throat was cut during her sleep, identified Siwinski as the man who stood over the coffin of the girl and said, "Next time you will know better."

BIG 4 ENGINE LEAVES TRACK

Engineer, Fireman Escape Injury as Locomotive Leaves Rails Here.

Although a locomotive and tender and baggage car of a Big Four passenger train were derailed at the Leader street viaduct yesterday shortly after 3 p. m., no one was injured. Damage unofficially estimated at several thousand dollars was done to the locomotive, tender and the roadbed.

East and west railroad service was delayed slightly while workmen cleared away the wreckage.

Rails and the roadbed were torn up for a distance of 75 yards by the locomotive, which ended its plunge with the tender standing at an angle of nearly 45 degrees.

Big Four officials were in Marion today investigating the cause of the detailment.

Wreck crews were rushed to clear the tracks and remove the derailed locomotive and tender. Tracks were cleared by 7:30 p. m.

The train was traveling at a low rate of speed, preparing to stop at Union station.

Several hundred persons watched train crews remove the wreckage and replace splintered ties and twisted rails.

The Marion fire department was called to extinguish blazing ties when acetylene torches were used to cut away rail bolts.

Traffic on Leader street, which passes under the viaduct, was temporarily suspended while the wreckage was being cleared away.

C. F. BRONSON NEW GAS CO. MANAGER

Sandusky Man Succeeds R. C. Foster in Marion Office of Firm.

Appointment of C. F. Bronson as manager of the Marion district of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. was announced today by E. M. Tharp, assistant general manager of that company.

In his new position here, Bronson succeeds R. C. Foster who has been transferred to eastern territory served by the Columbia system properties, of which the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. is a part. Foster goes to Bellaire, Md., to take charge of main line work there.

Bronson comes to Marion from Sandusky where he was local manager for the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Since boyhood he has been associated with the gas industry.

In the local position, Bronson assumes charge of not only the Marion plant and organization of the gas company, but those, as well, in 17 other towns served by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. in this district. He has been associated in various capacities with the local gas company and affiliated companies for a number of years.

He assumed his new duties in the Marion office today.

Mouser Predicts Return of $175,000 by Phone Co.

State Commission Orders Refund of Increased Rates Collected Under Bond from Aug. 1, 1925, to Present Time; Saving To Be $3 to $18 a Year.

Prediction that Marion patrons of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. will receive refunds totalling approximately $175,000 on rates collected under bond since Aug. 1, 1925, was made today by Congressman Grant E. Mouser, Jr., on receipt of an order of the state utilities commission fixing new rates for the telephone company.

Annual savings of $3 to $18 to each customer from rates now collected under bond will result from the commission's order, providing the decision of the commission stands. The new rates are effective as of June 5, 1930, unless the company files a petition in error with the Ohio supreme court in 30 days.

Victory for City

The new rate schedule and order of refund are seen as a victory for the city in the five-year rate fight which began on Aug. 1, 1925. Mouser, then Marion city solicitor, led the fight against increased rates before the commission.

Mouser explained how he arrived at the refund figure of approximately $175,000. The original order of the commission called for a refund of $112,000 for rates collected under bond during the period from Aug. 1, 1925 to Dec. 31, 1928. An additional refund from Dec. 31, 1928, to June 5, 1930, is estimated at $50,000.

Since the new rate schedule announced this week is effective as of June 5, 1930, an additional refund from that date to the present time will amount to several thousand dollars. The total amount to be refunded will be augmented by a six per cent interest charge which the telephone company will be obliged to pay on the amount of the refund by provisions of the Pence law governing the collection of advanced rates under bond.

Every rate schedule representing increased rate charges was cut by the order of the commission. Not one was permitted to remain at the rate the company asked and collected under bond, it was pointed out.

Following are the new rates, a comparison with present rates being collected under bond, and the annual savings to customers. All rates quoted, new and old, are subject to a discount of 25 cents if paid before the tenth day of the month

Rates Compared

For individual residence service with a wall phone the charge under the new rate is $2.75 a month or 50 cents less than the present rate of $3.25. The annual savings to each customer amounts to $6. The charge for desk phones under this schedule is 25 cents more than for wall phones on both old and new rates.

Four-party line service with a wall phone under the new rate is $2.25 a month, 25 cents less than the existing rate. Subscribers to this service will save $3 a year by the commission's order. Desk style phones are 25 cents more than wall phones on both the new and old schedules.

Greatest savings will accrue to customers on the individual business line service, which will cost $5.75 a month instead of the present $7.25. The result is a savings of $18 a year. Business two-party lines are reduced from the present charge of $5.25 to $4.25, a savings of $1 a month or $12 a year

New rates for 10-party business service outside the city of Marion are $3.25 a month, or 50 cents less than the existing rate of $3.75. Rural residence 10-party rates were not under dispute in the rate fight, as no increased charge was asked for this branch of service by the company.

Has Appeal Right

Providing the telephone company does not appeal the case, it has six months in which to pay all refunds due subscribers.

The telephone rate controversy began Aug. 1, 1925 when the company filed a new higher schedule of rates with the commission, based on a claimed valuation of $1,344,000. The city protested and in its evidence contended $846,000 was a fair valuation for the company. In deciding the case, the commission fixed the valuation at $1,179,557.24. Rates based on this valuation were allowed by the commission to pay a return of seven per cent.

After determining the valuation figure, and fixing the amount of refund due Marion subscribers, the commission last June ordered the company to draw up a rate schedule to comply with its decision. The rates were approved and ordered in effect by the commission.

Throughout the five-year rate fight, the city was represented by Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr. and Grant E. Mouser Sr.

FINLAND HIGHWAYS IN ARCTIC CIRCLE

Far-North Road May Become Popular with American Automobile Tourists.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON — Most any American who has an automobile, a bicycle or even a good pair of legs now, can venture far within the Arctic circle.

A road located in Northern Finland and believed to be the northernmost thoroughfare in existence, starts about 300 kilometers within the circle and extends about 250 kilometers farther north to the Fjord of Petsamo in the Arctic Ocean. Incidentally this harbor is free from ice the year round.

American automobile tourists are going to hear much about this road next month when delegates to the Sixth International Road Congress convene here. E. W. Skogstrom, director general of roads, Helsingford, Finland, will submit a detailed report on its construction and capability in handling traffic.

The Imperial Russian government started construction of the highway in 1916 as a military measure. It would establish communication with the Allies and balk the German blockade of the Baltic Sea. Then came the revolution in that country in March the following year and Finland resumed the construction work. Total cost of the road aggregates $1,500,000.

The road has been open for quite some time and already venturesome motor tourists have traveled to its northern end. Automobile service stations and roadside hotels have sprung up but most of them are open only during the summer months

ALIMONY HIGH FOR ACTORS

MANY MOVIE STARS FIND MATRIMONY COSTLY EXPERIMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.,—The "Alimony Blues" has become Hollywood's matrimonial theme song and it being moaned by some of the film center's most famous actors and directors whose matrimonial ships have foundered.

Out on the coast it isn't the woman who pays and pays. The paying is done by the men whose wives have managed to persuade a sympathetic court that genius and domestic bliss cannot abide in one home, be it ever so palatial. And smart lawyers who excel at drawing up alimony settlements are getting wealthier by the minute.

Charlie Chaplin is the leader of the alimony parade. Few men have found married life shorter, less satisfactory and more costly. He paid $107,500 to close the book of his marriage to Mildred Harris. And he has just finished paying $625,000 cash alimony to his second wife, Lita Grey Chaplin. But he isn't really through with it yet. For two more years he must pay his ex-wife one thousand dollars a month. And then after he has established a trust fund of $200,000, the incident will have closed accounts for married life of less than two years' duration.

• • •

JOHN GILBERT has had to dig up the most important sum of $156,000 for alimony to Leatrice Joy, and he must also pay $2,600 a year until their child reaches the age of eighteen. Miss Joy has not remarried, but Gilbert is now married to Ina Claire, who is now in New York, while Gilbert remains in Hollywood.

That wild man of the virile west, William S. Hart, has completed his $200,000 alimony payment to his former wife, Winifred Westover. And the suave Adolphe Menjou has recently finished his last weekly payment of $550 to his first wife, and so completed a $67,000 alimony bill.

Menjou further gave his wife a cash payment of $25,000 and a $75,000 home. When the negotiations were settled, Adolphe's lawyers declared that their client had been left virtually penniless.

Bernard P. Fineman, the film producer, married Evelyn Brent, the actress, in November, 1922. They were divorced in 1927 after having been separated for over two years. Fineman agreed to pay his wife $200 weekly for a period of five years. In addition he insured his life for a large sum in her favor and also gave her bonds and stocks as well as some jewelry.

RONALD COLMAN may seem the romantic ideal of a world of movie fans, but to his wife, Thelma, he is just another alimony payer. The amount was not made public, although it is known that some years ago, she suddenly appeared in Hollywood, having come from Europe, and filed a suit demanding $1,000 a month and one-half of the community property.

Hoot Gibson, husband of pretty Sally Eilers, is paying his first domestic adventure $150 a week until he has made a $30,000 total. His daughter, Lois, is also named beneficiary of $100,000 life insurance policy. Another who has paid a $30,000 alimony account is Al Santell, the director. This sum is in addition to the $20,000 Santell gave her when they went their separate ways, two years ago.

The busiest men in Hollywood are the ex-husbands who must hustle to pay their alimony bills, if they don't want to hold up a picture because of a jail sentence. Cullen Landis is one of the alimony payers who has seen the inside of a jail. His arrears in the $250 weekly payment he agreed to pay at the time of his divorce have had him in and out of jail many times since 1927. Al St. John is another who has served a jail sentence because of non-payment. No wonder women call Hollywood an earthly paradise.

Those who bury the hatchet should also bury the shovel.

EDWARD D. FELL, 53, CLAIMED BY DEATH

Former Caledonia Resident Dies at Ranch Home in California.

Edward D. Fell, 53, former Caledonia resident, and brother of Mrs. J. J. Stafford of 354 Hane avenue, died Monday noon at his ranch home near Ramona, Calif. He had been ill more than three years.

Mr. Fell was well known in Marion. He was born at Caledonia on Nov. 22, 1877, the eldest son of the late Edward T. and Josephine Adelaide Bayles Fell. One sister, Grace and a brother, preceded him in death.

Twenty-seven years ago he left Caledonia for the west. In August, 1907, he was married to Margaret Flagg of San Diego and since that time he had made his home in southern California. Mr. Fell was a member of the Methodist church and of the Knights of Pythias lodge.

Surviving Mr. Fell are his wife, a brother, James B. Fell of Iberia, and his sister, Mrs. Stafford of Hane avenue. An aunt, Olive E. Bayles, a former Marion resident, was with him at the time of his death.

Funeral srevices will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in San Diego, with burial in a San Diego cemetery.

J. E. Messenger Named on Burial Committee

James E. Messenger, Spanish War veteran and former Marion county treasurer, yesterday was appointed by the board of county commissioners as a member of the soldiers' burial committee.

Messenger's appointment fills the vacancy created by the death several weeks ago of Col. George B Christian.

BOOSTERS MEET

Baptist Church Class of Children Outlines Program.

The Booster Band of Emmanuel Baptist church met yesterday afternoon after school with about 30 children present. The band was organized several years ago, but this is the first year that it has had a definite program of Bible study. Rev. S. F. Porter, pastor of the church, and leader of the band, is directing their study to the Gospel of John.

Questions are given the students each week, covering the material they are to read. The student having the best record at the Christmas time will be presented a present from the pastor.

Meetings are held each Tuesday afternoon after school.

The British Imperial Conference.

The British imperial conference which began its sessions in London this week is the first since 1926. It will revolve primarily around the movement for free trade within the British empire and protective tariffs against the remainder of the world. Some idea of the importance of free trade to the United States may be gained from the fact that last year eighteen per cent. of all United States exports went to Canada, sixteen per cent. to Great Britain and the Irish Free State, four per cent. to Australia and New Zealand, and about five per cent. to other parts of the British empire—more than forty per cent. all together. For that reason this country may well await the outcome of the conference with a high degree of interest.

The imperial conference system originated in 1887 when the prime ministers of the self-governing dominions conferred in London with the British prime minister on matters of common interest. A second and more important conference was held in 1897 in connection with Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, and a third in 1902 at Edward VII's coronation. At the last-named conference it was decided to hold future conferences at intervals of not more than four years. The British imperial conference, now open to all dominion cabinet officers, is a kind of advisory gathering of the clans, without charter, constitution or statutory authority.

Under empire free trade, the British empire would be an economic unit like the United States of America. At present, the five British self-governing dominions have protective tariffs which, except that of India, grant British goods preference in the form of reduced duties. The empire free traders insist that these preferential rates are now so high that British goods can not successfully surmount them.

It is by no means certain that empire free trade enjoys as much support among the dominions as in Great Britain. The dominions would be delighted to see their agricultural products admitted to Great Britain free of duty while other nations' agricultural products were taxed, but they have developed many manufacturing industries now competing with British industries, which demand protection, and which oppose admitting British goods free of duty to their own shores. The anti-protectionists in Great Britain point out also that empire free trade would reduce the purchase of British goods by countries such as Argentina, which now exports large quantities of agricultural products to Great Britain free of duty.

In London within the next few days, therefore, an issue of importance to every nation dependent upon foreign trade will be clarified. The United States will be among the most interested of the spectators.

Permanent Registration Thursday.

It may be well again to remind Marion readers that tomorrow will be the first of the three designated days, during which permanent registration may be made. Every voting booth will be open from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock at night. If advantage is taken of this first opportunity to register, the voter will not again have to qualify by registering to exercise the right of suffrage so long as the new permanent registration law remains in force in its present form or is repealed, neither of which possible eventualities, in the light of the experience of other states, is probable.

Election officials are going to have to work fast. In some precincts they may be hard pressed, even though there should be a steady stream of registrants during the eight hours on each of the three days named for registration, the other registration days being October 10 and 11.

It will not be inability to register, however, that will disqualify many would-be voters at the elections this fall. It will be indifference and procrastination.

Secretary of State Brown, having in view the qualification of as many voters as possible, has asked that men and women electors generally, and women electors particularly, take advantage of their earliest opportunities to qualify for participation in the coming election. He calls attention to the fact that many men electors will be able to register only in the evening and at night, and asks that housewives take advantage of the afternoon registration hours to accommodate them. A double problem is faced, the physical difficulty of caring for the electors' needs, and averting a last-minute rush.

Prompt and general cooperation by the people can make the new election law amendment successful.

Senators William E. Borah, of Idaho, and Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, who pose at election time as Republicans, are to appeal to the Republican voters of Montana to return Thomas J. Walsh, the Democratic nominee, to the senate, which gives light on another thing the matter with the Republican party.

The three verdicts returned in Bucyrus for the ruthless slaying of that Galion gasoline attendant go to make plain that the percentage of sob sisters among the people of Crawford county is infinitesimally small.

The World Series.

This is the day set for the opening of the outstanding festival of American sports, the World's series. Shibe park, Philadelphia, is to be the scene of the opener, and the contending teams, the St. Louis Cardinals, of the National league, and the Philadelphia Athletics, of the American. Both teams have been playing classy ball.

The Athletics have the prestige of being the present world champions, if that amounts to anything, and the Cardinals made a finish, esteemed by followers of the sport as truly remarkable. Both teams are made up of hard and consistent players whose team work has been excellent, and both are splendidly managed. As to the outcome of the series, there is as much uncertainty regarding it as has ever attended baseball's annual classic.

It is hinted that former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, has his rod up in the hope of attracting the presidential lightning. Wouldn't it be odd should Democracy select for its candidate in 1932 the man it threw out of its national convention in San Francisco only a little over a decade before?

Arthur Rizzo, of Valetta, Malta, has established a new world endurance swimming record of sixty-eight hours and eleven minutes, an hour and a minute beyond the former record. It may be noted that all the world's progress isn't being made here in America. The story of worthwhile accomplishment is international, even though the rest of the world hasn't yet arrived at tree-sitting and talking marathons.

Another Argument Against War.

There have been hints and more than hints in some of the World war literature that the generals were not the paragons of efficiency and the masters of military strategy that they are supposed to be. At least two war novels and several war plays have emphasized bungling by the "brass hats," as the commanding officers were called.

A recent book written by Captain B. H. Liddell Hart offers more evidence on the vulnerability of commanders in the World war when subjected to the searching scrutiny of post-war analysts working with normal standards of military efficiency. Captain Hart is described as an eminent English military critic. His book is "The Real War, 1914 to 1918."

Among his observations are these:

The Germans could have won the war in 1914 had they not blundered.

The Allies could have turned the retreat from the Marne into victory had they not blundered.

Joffre, Foch, Haig, French, Falkenhayn and even Pershing made disastrous mistakes, although Pershing is let off somewhat easier than the rest.

The entire war, with few exceptions, was a series of blunders as far removed from the efficiency demanded by military strategy as anything could be. As a result, millions gave their lives needlessly.

Here is a kind of left-handed argument for the pacificists—for all those who wish to avoid war in the future. Military combat has grown to such proportions that it can not be controlled by individuals. Captain Liddell names three officers in the World war who displayed unusual military skill. They are Colonel Hollman, the brains behind General Ludendorff; General Liggett of the American army, and General Petain of the French army. Three men could not eliminate blundering from the World war, however.

War may be said to have become, even in strong military nations, an avocation. When turned into a vocation for one reason or another it may be expected in most cases to get as completely out of hand as it did sixteen years ago. Inability to fight intelligently is as good an argument as any against fighting at all.

THE REPRISAL.

Editorial Opinion.

A TIME FOR RATIONAL SPENDING.

The country will be lifted out of its business depression the sooner, Secretary Lamont states, if the average person continues to buy normally the things he needs. That contains the counsel of reason.

Virgil noted that it is easier to descend to a certain point than to get back up again. All economic history during the subsequent 2,000 years proves it. Crashes come suddenly; but it takes time to crawl out from under the debris and regain one's confidence in the future. The Wall Street debacle and the coincident slump in business last year did not destroy any old economic law or create any new one. There have been similar periods of depression in this country before. They will probably recur in the future, as long as our present industrial system continues to operate. They have always been followed by recovery and a new lease of prosperity. This one will be no exception as surely as shoes wear out and clothes fade and cars fall to pieces, all demanding replacement.

While Secretary Lamont does not venture any prediction as to when another peak of prosperity will be reached, what he does do is to turn to government reports for evidence that consumers are taking advantage of present low prices to buy what they need. This is the beginning of the liquidation of stocks which must precede the resumption of productive industry. The return of prosperity naturally will be spotty. Sections of the country depending on industries whose stocks are quickly cleared off the shelves will feel it soonest. Gradually their purchasing power will be felt in other sections. This is no time for extravagance, but neither is it a time for those who have money and need commodities to keep their money out of circulation, when by putting it to work they can speed up employment, cut down the outlay of unemployment relief and thus hasten the return of normal conditions.—Detroit Free Press.

IMMUNITY AND PUBLIC OFFICERS.

Our states have gone far in permitting witnesses in criminal matters to plead immunity from testifying on the ground that their testimony might tend to incriminate themselves. In New York, it has become quite common for public officials to claim immunity from testifying on this ground, when questioned as to their own official acts. Governor Roosevelt has become rather weary of this plea, and is preparing to ask the approaching session of the New York legislature to provide a way to stop it.

After consulting with various legal authorities, he thinks this can be done, without encountering any constitutional obstacle. The legislature has the power to fix the qualifications for holding any public office. The governor's plan is to have the legislature pass an act making the waiving of immunity one of these qualifications. If the legislature consents, each public official, before assuming the duties of his position, would sign a paper waiving any claim to immunity from testifying when questioned with regard to any of his official acts. It will be interesting to see how the matter turns out.—Columbus Dispatch.

In Ohio's First Convention

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

In view of the fact that Ohio retained the "color line" in her constitution long after it was made nugatory by amendments of the federal constitution, the proceedings of the first constitutional convention on this subject are interesting.

At one time fourteen members of that convention voted to abolish all race distinctions as to qualifications of electors and the same day, by a vote of nineteen to fifteen, the convention adopted a proviso for insertion in the article on suffrage that "all male negroes or mullattos now residing in this territory shall be entitled to vote if they shall, within six months, make a record of their citizenship."

By a vote of seventeen to sixteen the convention refused to extend this proviso to the descendants of such negroes and mullattos as shall be recorded.

As D. Meade Massie, of Chillicothe, observes in reference to this matter: "There must have been some vigorous work done among the delegates to the convention about this time for when the article containing the proviso above referred to came up for action it was stricken out. The vote was a tie—seventeen to seventeen, but was decided in the negative by the casting vote of Dr. Tiffin, the president of the convention.

And the convention was controlled by Virginians, led by Charles Wyling Bird, who stood firmly for the right of the negro to vote.

Mental Illnesses Increase.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

No greater affliction can come to man than loss of reason. When mental control is lost, direction of the body and its acts is gone.

There is much alarm in the ranks of the medical profession today over the steady growth and complexity of mental diseases. The problem of the mentally defective is always a serious one.

The American Medical association, at its recent meeting, took action to bring about a more scientific handling of these problems. To further scientific investigation it was thought desirable to appoint a special committee. This will concern itself solely with psychiatric services in the criminal courts and prisons. It will cooperate with hospitals and other organizations in the care and treatment of the mentally ill. And at the same time an effort will be made to promote greater progress in the treatment of mental defectives.

The efforts to deal justly and wisely with criminal offenders are often handicapped. They fail because some lawyers and judges do not have the same conception of the factors that lie behind an offense. Through a psychiatric service, if it is sensibly conducted, something more than mere penal treatment can be given offenders. A sharper line can be drawn between criminals and those suffering from mental disorders. By this service society will receive greater protection against this type of offenders.

The mental hygiene problems of today are exceedingly complex. Mental troubles are far more prevalent than ever before. Life is more complex than it used to be. Many persons have difficulty to adjust themselves to society, and to the requirements of living.

The health of the body and the health of the mind act and react on each other. If we are to be really happy, our mental attitude must be healthy. Many physical disorders come from perverted ideas.

Worry drains away a large store of nervous energy. Many sorts of mental conditions or attitudes bring about real disease. By simply correcting one's attitude of depression, irritability, cynicism, and dissatisfaction with life in general one can bring physical well-being. Then, of necessity, the mental life will be transformed.

Very often there is no real health breakdown until there is a mental breakdown. Our understanding of the mind is very meager, but we must exert some control over our thinking. Happy is the man who is capable of directing his thinking wisely. The surest guarantee is a strong, normal body.

Janos Bolyai.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Some of the scientific theories and discoveries of modern times have caused men, at moments, to question whether, after all, nature is not, perhaps, capricious and illogical. Are natural laws as immutable as the laws of the Medes and Persians? Are laws which hold true everywhere on earth likewise valid on Betelgeuse or Sirius? It was the Norwegian dramatist, Ibsen, who once asked: "How can you guarantee that two and two do not make five on Jupiter?"

In modern times the discovery of the non-Euclidean geometries brings forcibly to the foreground this very question. Is the Euclidean geometry "true" on this planet, but not "true" on Mars? Huxley, though no mathematician and not having the mathematician's point of view, sensed the importance of the issue, as illustrated in his words:

"Let us suppose that a telescope powerful enough to show us what is going on in the nebula of the sword of Orion, should reveal a world in which stones fell upward, parallel lines met and the fourth dimension of space was quite obvious. Men of science would have only two alternatives before them. Either the terrestrial and the nebular facts must be brought into harmony by such feats of subtle sophistry as the human mind is always capable of performing when driven into a corner, or science must throw down its arms in despair and commit suicide, either by the admission that the universe is, after all, irrational, inasmuch as that which is truth in one corner of it is absurdity in another, or by a declaration of incompetency."

Einstein has shown conclusively that Huxley is wrong, and that neither geometry is "true" in the absolute sense. The particular geometry most suitable is that determined by the metric properties of the particular space in question. Fortunately, these geometries were available to him through the discoveries of a young Hungarian, Janos Bolyai.

This young man—1802-1860—whose father was a fellow student at Goettingen of the great mathematician, Gauss, produced a brief treatise on "the absolutely true science of space," as he called it. In his enthusiasm, he wrote his father: "I have created a new universe from nothing." In contradistinction to Euclid, Bolyai assumed that, in a plane, instead of one line, two lines could be drawn through a point parallel to a given line. The system thus set up was logical and self-consistent. Gauss, wrote in 1832: "I consider the young geometer, von Bolyai, a genius of the first rank." Bolyai's epochal work is one of the most brilliant achievements in the history of science.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

a general store at Little Sandusky Sept. 26.

Police recovered a miscellaneous quantity of loot when they searched 744 Creston avenue yesterday. Five large sacks of sugar, stationery, tobacco, canned food, clothing, coffee, butcher knives, honey, facial cream and even huge toy dogs figured in the heap of loot now at city police station.

Several guns are missing, but police hope to recover them within a few days.

The most recent robbery of Beaver and Turner is that of the Midway filling station on Harding highway near Galion last Sunday night, police say. Sheriff Charles E. Mills of Morrow county was called in with the aid of the owner of the station, obtained the license number of an automobile used in the burglary.

The number corresponded with that of an automobile driven by two men police suspicioned. A warrant was obtained, and police arrested Beaver and recovered some of the loot. The arrest a few hours later of Turner resulted in recovery of more loot.

Turner was arrested last night, but was not in possession of any stolen goods.

Turner and Beaver have admitted they burglarized two filling stations near Delaware, one of which is on Delaware road, three miles north of that city. They were in possession of loot said to have been taken from a general store in Ridgeway in a recent burglary.

Details of each burglary have not been obtained by police. Loot from at least eight were found in possession of the men, according to Acting Police Chief Ira Schrock.

"THE BIG HOUSE" TO BE SHOWN HERE

Marion Gets Picture of Prison Life as Ban Is Lifted.

Following close on the announcement that "The Big House" will be shown in Ohio, the Palace theater has announced that the picture will be shown here five days next week, beginning Sunday.

"The Big House" was banned in Ohio some time ago, because the board of censors feared that it would stir memories of the Ohio state penitentiary fire. Controversy waged in theatrical columns and in political circles over the banning of this talking picture which is credited with being one of the outstanding pictures, both for story and portrayal, that has been released this season.

Chester Morris, Robert Montgomery and Wallace Beery have the three leading roles in this picture of the inside of an overcrowded prison.

"The Big House" comes to the Palace a week before it will be shown in Columbus. A midnight preview will be given Saturday at 11:30 p. m.

Sparks from Chimney Ignite Shingles; Damage $20.

Fire caused by sparks from a chimney lighting on a shingle roof this morning did $20 damage to the residence of Olga Hunt at 209 Nye street.

The Barger fire yesterday brought the total in Marion for the month to 21, and swelled the fire damage figure to $4,200 just as a record month was in sight.

September fires a year ago numbered 19 and did $4,500 damage.

They looked at him, extended his credit and left respectfully. If his will had enabled him to control himself as easily as he controlled circumstances and other men, he would be still alive.

Farmers who consume milk from their own herds are advised to check up on their cattle to determine if they stray into nearby woods where the weed may be growing.

Marion county farmers who think they have such a weed in their wooded sections may bring samples of the weed to our office for comparison with a specimen we have here, or the examination can be conducted on their own farms by calling Dr. J. T. Gruber, dairy and food inspector, according to Dr. Sifritt.

PLANS OF POLISH DICTATOR UNKNOWN

Marshal Pilsudski, Directing Personality of Country, Assumes Premiership.

By International News Service

BERLIN—Marshal Josef Pilsudski is dictator of Poland again.

Though he has been the directing head behind the scenes of Polish politics ever since his sudden revolt four years ago, the fact that in the midst of Poland's grave economic crisis he determined to assume the premiership and therewith full responsibility for the government is taken to foreshadow far-reaching events in the near future.

The issue in Poland is the same as in Germany; namely, dictatorship or democracy capitalism or socialism.

But while in Germany, the economic issue s taking preponderance over the political issues, politics still dominates the stage in Poland, mainly because of the pienomic issue is taking preponderality of Pilsudski himself.

Also, while in Germany the larger part of the dictatorship enthusiasts are for the preservation of capitalism, the larger part of the Polish dictatorship enthusiasts are for a sort of half military, half bolshevist state socialism, which they call "budgetism," and through which they have already brought a good part of the industry of the country into the hands of the state.

Just where Pilsudski himself stands, politically and economically, nobody knows, for Pilsudski is the Hamlet among European rulers, a complex, contradictory and problematical personality, in which periods of feverish activity are followed by periods of complete apathy and in which Socialistic and Democratic beginnings struggle with militaristic and dictatorial instincts.

GROUND RULES FIXED FOR WORLD'S SERIES

Regulation Limit Prospect of Freak Home Runs.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1 — World's series ground rules, made public today for the first time by Baseball Commissioner Landis, limit the prospect of freak home runs playing any part in the battle between the Athletics and Cardinals.

Balls striking fair and bounding into the stands on foul ground will be held to two-base hits but if they hop into the stands on fair ground they will be home runs.

Balls hitting the cluter of amplifying horns atop the right-centerfield fence at Shibe park must stick in one of the horns to be a homer. If they merely strike the loud-speaking apparatus and bounce back, the ball will still be in play.

At Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, balls, dropping between the screen and wall will be ruled two-base hits. They must go through or strike in the screen above the wall to be home runs.

Quick pitches are barred under the series regulations, which also specify the following:

All balls to be dirtied before put into play.

Rosin bag to be provided for each game.

One base on passed ball or wild pitch.

Ball striking wall of upper tier (at Shibe park) and bounding back in field: Home run.

"NOW I EAT WHAT I LIKE," POPULAR WOMAN DECLARES

One after another, men and women all over this part of the country are coming right out in public to tell others about this simple method to end indigestion, and the gas, nausea, heartburn, headaches, etc., it causes.

Just the other day, Mrs. C. H. Brown, popular mother of three, who lives at 1107 E. 88th St., Cleveland, Ohio, enthusiastically declared: "At last I have found real relief for indigestion. I eat what I like now without fear of that old, heavy feeling of stuffiness or of headaches and nervousness.

"I suffered with indigestion for eight years; tried all sorts of medicines and treatments without success. But the first few tablets of Pape's Diapepsin convinced me it was the thing I needed. The stuffy feeling, headaches and nervousness after meals just disappeared. I am sure grateful to our doctor who got me started on it."

Pape's Diapepsin is perfectly harmless; will not form any habit. Get a box from your druggist; and next time something disagrees, chew one of the candy-like tablets. See how the burning or pain disappears! If you wish to try them before buying, write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va., for a FREE sample box

With [illegible] against his ribs he [illegible], too weak to pull [illegible]. Getting his second [illegible] his body up, up, and [illegible] sprawling half on, half [illegible] ledge, just as the [illegible] room went out.

[illegible] minutes Thorne lay [illegible] too spent for further [illegible] but his brain was on fire. [illegible] the person in the room seen [illegible] he sent by the window? No, [illegible] that mad whirlwind [illegible] never have detected [illegible] And yet—and yet—the light had gone out.

Slowly, cautiously, he drew himself up on the ledge and crouched against the window, leaning his weight against it to keep his balance. The window, like all in the house, opened outward and was in two sections, resembling small, glass paned doors. Thorne's hand felt along his belt of tools and he drew out a piece of paste paper.

Sticking it over the pane opposite the window catch, he next took out his glass cutter. Using it with care, he cut an opening large enough for him to insert his hand, and without noise he removed the paper and the glass clinging to it. Thrusting his fingers through the hole it took the fraction of a second to unlatch that side of the window. Revolver in hand he slipped over the sill and into the room, shutting the window behind him.

Not a sound broke the stillness as he stood with back against the wall. He slid one foot along after the other sideways, until he judged he must be half-way around the room and almost opposite the window. He ran his left hand over the board paneling in search of a light switch. As he again moved sideways, his shoulders brushed against a door jamb and he halted. This time his groping fingers found the switch.

Thorne blinked, blinded by the light. It was a second before he saw clearly. He had the room to himself. Turning to the door he thrust the brass bolt on it in place, then made a minute survey of what had been Jack Winslow's workshop. The only indication of the purpose to which the room had been put was the long sink against the wall, the special electric fixtures hanging from the ceiling and a built-in shelf with glass doors. Except for that and a fire extinguisher, the walls were bare.

Careful to keep walking between the light and the window, Thorne dropped on hands and knees and circled the room. The walls and ceiling were paneled with wall board and he had about completed his tour when he spied a break in the paneling. Drawing closer, he saw that it was a panel set on hinges. It opened easily and he looked into a dark aperture. With an inward curse that he had neglected to bring his flashlight with him, he glanced hurriedly about the room. One of the electric fixtures against the wall had an extension cord attached. Picking up the bulb at the end of the cord he carried it to the tiny closet and looked inside.

Evidently the closet, or cupboard, was used as a general dump for discarded articles, for in one corner Thorne saw a dozen or more wooden shoe trees and picked one up. The rust on the steel joint betokened age, as did the black smut on the wooden arch, and he tossed it back in the box.

Going over to the door, he switched off the light and shot the bolt noiselessly back, then softly, very softly, turned the short knob of the lock and drew open the door, inch by inch, he waited, but no sound disturbed the silence. Shutting the door of Jack's workshop carefully, the detective crept along, headed for the second story, but this time he chose the stairs instead of the elevator.

Walls inclosed the stairs and a door, opening into the servants' wing of the house, gave admittance to them.

With no light to guide him, only his abnormal sense of locality, he moved on down the hall, keeping in the center of the heavy strip of carpet; he dared not run the risk of bumping against a bedroom door and thus awakening the sleeping occupant.

Only by a turn in the carpet strip, could he tell that he had reached the main hallway. There he paused, perplexed, for it also was in darkness, contrary to the custom of the house, judging from the remarks Arnold Winslow had let fall during one of their conversations as to his wife's terror of darkness and fire and their habit of keeping the halls lighted throughout the night. His bedroom lay, as he remembered it, to the left and he faced in that direction just as a sound to the right reached him and he swung about.

Thorne grew rigid. Was the person, not five yards from him, approaching or going in the opposite direction? One minute, two minutes passed, then Thorne took the initiative and advanced along the hall, his "creepers" making no sound. Something loomed out of the darkness ahead and his out-flung arms closed about a woman's form. His hand across her mouth muffled her terrified scream to a gurgle, and half lifting, half dragging her along he entered the open door of a vacant bedroom and switched on the light as she dropped to the floor at his feet.

NESSWORK ELIMINATED IN SELECTION OF CORRECT FACE POWDER

Find Out Skin Type and Rest Is Easy," Say Beauty Experts

American women have been slow to realize the many advantages resulting from the selection of the proper face powder. Now that it is a well-known fact that all skin is either oily, dry or normal, women find it easy to choose a face powder that best agrees with their own skin.

That's why more and more women are constantly changing to one of Plough's 3 Face Powders. When you choose yours you will be overjoyed at the sparkling, new beauty it brings your complexion. You'll thrill over its smooth, even texture and its lingering fragrance....its long clinging freshness....and you only have to try it once to see the difference between one of these specially-prepared powders and ordinary face powders.

FOR OILY SKIN—Choose heavy texture Plough's "Incense of Flowers" Face Powder in the oval box—75c.

FOR DRY SKIN—Choose light texture, Plough's "Favorite Bouquet" Face Powder in the square box—30c.

FOR NORMAL SKIN—Choose medium texture, Plough's "Exquisite" Face Powder in the round box—60c.

Each Plough powder comes in white, flesh, pink, brunette and Egyptian tints and is sensibly priced wherever beauty creations are sold.

Extravagance is out of date! Nowadays "to be smart is to be thrifty." As more and more women are realizing this, they are choosing one of Plough's 3 Face Powders, Not only because these modern powders give greater beauty to their skins; but because of the economy afforded by their quality at a sensible price.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

I CERTAINLY felt all right when I woke up this morning, and pinched Jubilee's nose and he opened one eye and wunk at me. When a fella's grandfather has been away and has got home again he certainly feels good. If I had lost my grandfather I don't know what I would have done. He is the only grandfather I have got. I guess he is the only grandfather the whole bunch has got, except Nibs, and he has got a grandfather and a grandmother, but he hasn't got any father and mother. It is kinda funny how a fella can have a grandfather and grandmother without having a father and a mother. I bet my mother and father would have been supprised when I was born if they found out they was my grandfather and grandmother. I don't know what my grandfather would have done then. He would have been out of a job. And my father would have felt funny to have been a grandfather and to not have any more whiskers than a frog. All the grandfathers I ever saw had them.

It wa skinda scroogeish when I let Jubilee down and put on my britches and went out to milk the dummed brutes. Younies and Maggie and Feeble came into the barn before I got done milking, and they all had on coats and furs, but Younie had on the nicest. I expect her father has got a better job than Feeble's and Maggie's. They look kinda nice when they are tight around her neck [illegible] laughed and she looked crosseyed at him, and he certainly did feel proud of himself. Any of the rest of us could have said it if we had thought of it, so he needn't be so stuck on himself.

On the way to the pasture there was a big lone truck with five automobiles on it, and the driver had went in a house, so we all climb up and got in the autos and scrooged down so he couldn't see us till he started up, and then we all sot up on the seats and pretended we were driving our own new autos, and when we had got out a long ways the man must have seen us in his looking glass for he stopped all at once and looked around, and we climb out of them and lit out like a flock of scairt sparrows. He shook his fist at us when we looked around, but he was laughing.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELA GARRISON

Dicky "Cuts In," and Madge, to Her Intense Relief

THERE was irritating smugness in Philip Veritzen's comment that Noel was "making a perfect ass of himself" in cutting in on Mary, but that "Colin will be too much for him. No amateur can compete with a professional." But I resolutely kept my temper while I longed for some argument which would make Noel's unreasonable father see the injustice he was doing his son. But I knew that only by an unusual ruse could I hope to hold his attention.

Mothered by necessity, a daring speech rose to my lips. I laughed softly and looked up with a challenge into his eyes.

"The only trouble with Noel is that he is so like you," I said.

"What do you mean?" he demanded, but I saw the little gleam in his eyes, which shows that he is intensely interested.

"Exactly what I say," I retorted. "I canont imagine you, at Noel's age, sitting back tamely and dancing with other girls while a handsome and fascinating man was monopolizing your inamorata's time. You know very well you would be doing exactly as Noel is doing. Now, wouldn't you?" I finished audaciously.

An Unfortunate Allusion

The gleam in his eyes was deeper now, and he tightened his clasp of my hand as if unconsciously.

"Why do you limit me?" he queried. "You say 'at Noel's age.' Can you imagine me tamely relinquishing my interest in a woman I—loved—at any age, even so advanced a one as you evidently consider my present status?"

I had brought it on myself, I reflected, grimly, as Mr. Veritzen's eyes bore down into mine, with the flaming spark ever stronger. I dropped my own lashes, and from under them sent a furtive glance in Dicky's direction. As I feared, he was looking at us over Helena Brixton's shoulder, and though his face showed no emotion whatever, I actually felt the anger which I knew was pouring out of his heart.

"You haven't answered me," Mr. Veritzen said softly, swinging me in the dance so that I no longer could see Dicky.

I tried to make my answer light and casual.

"I cannot imagine you giving up anything you happened to fancy, from an old coin to a primitive painting," I retorted, carefully bringing in two of his well-known hobbies "unless, of course, you realized that it really belonged to someone else."

"You flatter me," he said slowly, and there was derision in his tone. "I am a predatory person and I care no whit for ownership. If I want anything I get it fairly, if possible, if, not I take it. Don't forget that."

A Facetious Retort

Was there any especial meaning in his voice? I feared so, and I did not dare look up for fear I should meet something in his eyes which I did not wish to see.

"Do you know you remind me irresistibly of Junior?" I said with a little laugh which cost me much, but which I hoped Dicky saw. I had no wish to have him guess the seriousness with which Mr. Veritzen was investing our colloquy. "Sometimes he stands in the middle of the floor and announces to the world at large: 'I'm a bad boy. I'm a very bad boy. I'm the worst boy in the whole world'."

Dicky Angered

"Whos taking the name of my son in vain?" Dicky demanded at my elbow and tapped Mr. Veritzen upon the shoulder in approved stag-line fashion.

"Sorry, old man, but I'm taking her," he said, "but you needn't go partnerless if you're spry upon your feet."

I did not hear Mr. Veritzen's response, for my husband swirled me quickly away. But at the next turn a peep over Dicky's shoulder showed me the dignified figure of my employer making his way toward the settee where Lillian and Harry Underwood were watching the dancers.

"Got a rise out of him that time, the condemned old goat," Dicky growled, and my spirits rose immeasurably. It was not against me that my husband's anger was directed, but against my employer, and in my present mood I felt that I could enjoy listening to several

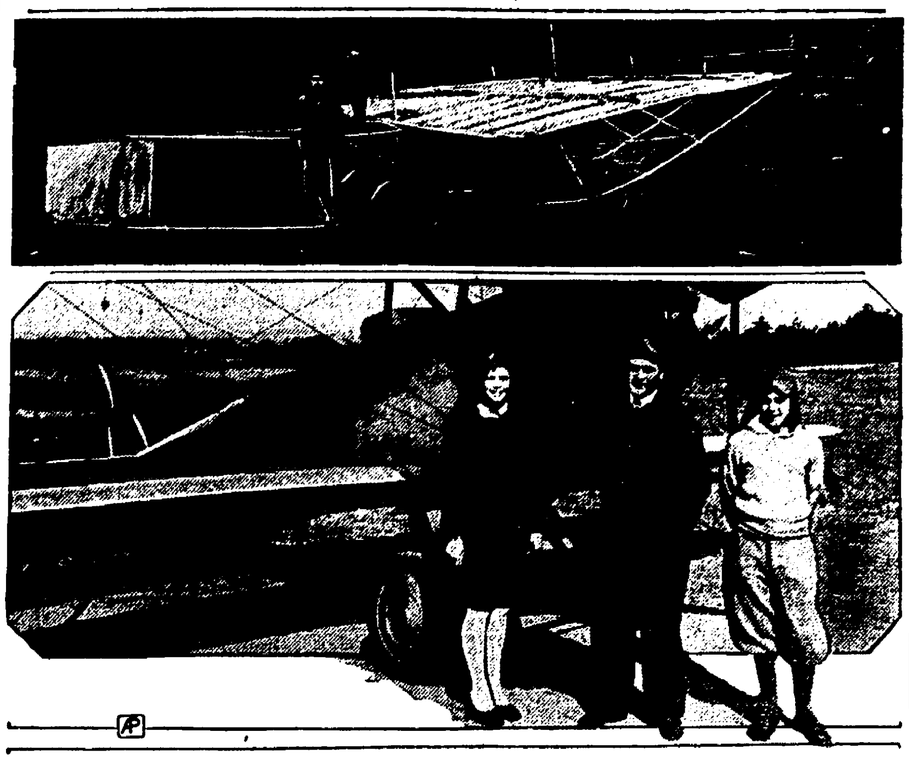
AVIATION FAMILY'S SPECIALTY

BOY, 13, IS PILOT; OTHER YOUNGSTERS TAKING LESSONS



The whole family of Ben T. Epps (lower center), Georgia's first aviator, is aerial. His son, Ben, jr. (right), is a pilot at 13 and daughter Evelyn (left), 15, is learning. Five younger children will start lessons when they get big enough. Above is plane Epps designed in 1907.

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, Ga.,—Flying's a family affair for the Epps of Athens, who—Father Epps, Mother Epps and the seven little Eppses—take to the air for pleasure and profits.

They come by it naturally, for the head of the house, Ben T. Epps, was Georgia's first air pilot.

The first aviator of the younger generation is Ben, jr., 13 years old and scaling an even hundred pounds, who is a qualified pilot. He took his first solo hop three months ago and makes solitary flights regularly now.

EVELYN, 15, and the oldest child, is taking lessons from her father, who operates a flying school, and expects to have a pilot's license before long.

May Virginia, 11, will be next in line for instruction, and there are four other children down to William Douglas, 14 months old, awaiting their turn to learn.

ALL of them and Mrs. Epps go for rides frequently. William Douglas, named for Douglas Davis of Atlanta, winner of the free-for-all event at the national air races last summer, had his first trip through the skies recently and celebrated by promptly going to sleep.

Epps built plane of his own design at 20, in 1907, shortly after the first successful flights by the Wright brothers. Epps' ship was only partially successful in flight

GRANGE MEETS

Progressive Farm Group Entertains Visitors from Grand Prairie

A health and food demonstration will be given at the Progressive grange hall southeast of Marion, today at 8 p. m., according to an announcement made at a meeting of the grange last night. A visitor from the Grand Prairie grange was present.

Names of first schools and first teachers were given in response to roll call. Reading were given as follows: "Forty Years Ago," C. L. Bish, "The Village Blacksmith," Alpheus Gruber; "The Tempest," Ray Epley; "Meddlesome Mattie," Mrs. O. E. Barks. Miss Grace Gruber gave a piano solo, followed by a recitation, "My Little Dog," Miss Ruth Kauffman, which closed the program. The next meeting will be held Oct. 14.

September Quiet in Building Circles.

Buildings activity in Marion during September was at low ebb, if building permit records of City Clerk Sylvester Larkin may be taken as an indication.

Clerk Larkin issued 20 permits last month for buildings expected to cost an aggregate of $4,420. A year ago, September permits numbered 38 and represented work costing $78,120.

A $2,000 filling station heads the list of permits issued last month. Permits were issued for six garages to cost $425; five porches to cost $555; two storerooms to cost $800; and one shed to cost $100. Five persons remodeled dwellings, at an estimated cost of $490.

Germany Launches Drive To Recover Part of Former Military Strength

BERLIN—A drive to arm Germany and to restore to her at least a part of her former military strength has been started by German official and unofficial military circles.

At present Germany is the only big power more or less disarmed. Under the treaty of Versailles she is permitted an army of 100,000 men but no modern fighting equipment, and a navy which is no longer registered in international reference books as a fighting force.

The new drive is championed especially by General Wilhelm Groener, minister of national defense, and General Hans von Seeckt, organizer and former commander of Germany's post-war army.

In speeches before the German Reichstag, General Groener declared: "It would be senseless and criminal to use our ten divisions to attack any of our neighbors.

Would Arm To Limit

"But within the limits of the Versailles treaty we must do everything to make our fighting forces as effective as possible so they will become an obstacle to every foreign power to invade German territory.

"A nation which no longer has the will to defend itself annihilates itself. No League of Nations will intervene to free it of fetters whose imposition it permitted.

"We must exploit every armament possibility left to us. Preparations for this must start in school and family. France, Italy, Poland and Czechoslovakia offer models for such preparations.

"Think of the statements of President Hoover regarding the training camps for volunteers in America and other expressions abroad.

"We must use every chance the Versaillies treaty leaves us to increase our strength, even if the military value of an addition is questioned."

Writes Book on Defense

The last remark was taken to refer to the proposed second armored "vest pocket" cruiser and to the excess of cavalry in the German army. Both are provided for in the Treaty of Versailles, but their military value is a subject of debate. The Reichstag budget committee has already rejected the cruiser for this year on the ground of economy.

The contribution of General von Seeckt is a book in which he shows Germany how best to defend herself.

General von Seeckt says the time of the cumbersome mass armies of the world is passed and proposes three separate armies instead:

Three Armies Proposed

First, a volunteer professional army of 200,000 men the first principle of which must be speed and mobility and which "besides possessing high-grade infantry must be particularly strong in highly trained and heavily armed cavalry, airplanes and motor transports."

Second, an active standing training army whose task it would be to "prepare the mass levy and to train the population."

Third, the mass of the male population recruited on the basis of mass conscription.

The second army would be a sort of standing skeleton organization of military trainers who would teach the third army which would be a sort of militia and in which every healthy male German would serve about three months.

General von Seeckt explains his scheme as follows:

"While the decision on the battlefield would be sought by the ready and militarily most efficient professional army in which fighting spirit and ability to attack would be decisive, the mass levy would defend the country against an attack through passive resistance."

Former Premier Poincare, other French critics and German pacifists have charged that the numerous German "fighting organizations" like the Steel Helmets, the Werwolfes and even the Democratic Reichsbanner Black-Red-Gold were really "training armies" and German Socialists have charged that German army circles were cooperating with the Bolshevist Red army in building up a military reserve for Germany.

Against these charges, Groener replied:

"Every military man knows that secret armaments are impossible today. Therefore assertions like those recently made by Poincare are nonsense.

"Our army expenditures amount to only four per cent of our total budget against 27 per cent in France, 20.3 per cent in Poland and 20 per cent in Czechoslovakia. We spend for the army only 11 marks per head of population, France 17.5, Poland 17 and Czechoslovakia 15.9 marks.

KENTON MAN ENDS 50 YEARS AS TEACHER

Phillip Ries Retires To Devote Time to Hobbies; Students Change Little.

PHILLIP C. RIES

KENTON, Oct. 1—After nearly 70 years spent in the pursuit of an education—and in passing it on to others—Phillip C. Ries of Kenton is through. He resigned this fall from a proffered position as teacher of the Greenwood school north of here that he might devote more time to his hobbies.

Crediting a great deal of his success in school work to strict disciplinary methods, Mr. Ries asserts that present-day children are much the same as those of previous generations. He has taught in schools with wooden blackboards; remembers various changes in buildings and text books and often reminiscences upon difficulties he sometimes had in obtaining his salary.

"In some school districts a donation fund was in evidence and every month I received a personal check in addition to my regular salary as a teacher. In others, when the board of education ran low on funds, parents of pupils were required to furnish me board and room that I might remain until the end of the term," he observed.

Several second generation groups have been taught by Mr. Ries during his one-half century of service.

His education was received in Kenton schools, in the old Ada Normal school (now Ohio Northern university) and in Chicago Athenium Business college

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Oct. 2

THE lunar transits in strong influence on this day point to unusually important developments, with the augury of generally progressive and prosperous conditions. This applies to employment, labor, industry and those new ventures calling for originality and independent personal initiative. An important change or journey is imminent, attended by advancement, honors or preferment in recognition for unusual service or steadfastness to responsibilities. It is suggested that a measure of precaution be exercised in signing papers.

Those whose birthday it is have before them the prospect of an eventful year, with many splendid opportunities for progress and financial prosperity. An important change or journey is foreseen, of far-reaching influence on the life. This possibly pertains to promotion or preferment in recognition for outstanding enterprise or fidelity. Employment industry and labor should thrive and essays at adventure or invention bring public assistance or attention. A child born on this day should be original, inventive, industrious and should rise to fine position and popularity.

In the past 3 weeks thousands of Marion men and women have ended their corn and callous troubles with END-O-CORN.

No matter how many so-called "corn cures" you have tried, if you still have your corns go to Henney & Cooper or your Druggist and get END-O-CORN. Use tonight, tomorrow alright. It can not fail.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

FOOTBALL, ordinarily considered the king of autumn sports steps aside today for a few days now to make way for the annual sports classic the world's series. Baseball in general and who is going to be the ultimate winner of the championship will be uppermost in the thoughs and minds of about three-fourth of the people of the sports world. Probably everyone who doesn't know anything about the game and also those who think they know something have picked the team which they are certain will emerge the champions. Whoever wins, it should be a better world's series than for the past several years. The American league will have to battle hard to beat the inspired Cardinals. That at least is something that hasn't been necessary for the last two or three series. (No, we are not picking a winner.)

• • •

WHILE it is quite probable that Marion Harding will not break into such a winning streak for the rest of the season as to enable it to win the N. C. O. pennant it is quite probable that the play of the Harding Presidents will continue to improve to such an extent as to make the team one feared by its late season opponents. A few of the teams that have maintained excellent records up to the point of meeting Harding may find a championship dream suddenly yet effectively shattered by a hard working improving President team.

Coach Bohyer is working hard to overcome some of the many weaknesses in the play of the team in general. It was evident in the play of the Galion game that the team was vastly improved over the lineup of the Toledo Central fracas. If the same rate of improvement continues there is every reason to believe that Harding will break into the win column before many weeks have passed.

• • •

IT is likely that some high class football will be necessary to beat Elyria this Friday night. In fact probably higher class than the locals are capable of at this time. Elyria is tough, having finished second in the Lake Erie league last year and lost but two lettermen. The league is made up of Lorain, Cleveland Shaw, Lakewood, Rocky River and Elyria. Add to the fact that Marion will probably be slightly bewildered in playing its first night game with the aid of the mezdas and there seems little opportunity of Harding starting its winning column for another week. However: BETTER TEAMS THAN ELYRIA HAVE BEEN BEATEN BY WORSE TEAMS THAN HARDING. A hard fight may bring the locals home with the initial win of the year.

Cubs Favorites To Win 1930 Championship of Windy City.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 1—Instead of lining up against the Philadelphia Athletics in the current world series, the fallen Cubs today invaded the stronghold of the lowly White Sox to fight for the baseball championship of Chicago.

It was somewhat of a bitter pill for the 1929 National league champions, who a month ago looked like certain repeaters with their four game lead, but they swaggered into Comiskey park intent on keeping faith with the posted odds by whipping their southside neighbors decisively.

The series, to be played on successive days until one club wins four games, created the usual amount of interest in Chicago. A total gate of 33,000 was expected for each game.

Either Pat Malone, or Bud Teachout, was expected to take the mound for the Cubs, while Manager Donie Bush was expected to with his knuckle ball expert, Ted Lyons, in an attempt to get a start on the Cubs although some expected Pat Caraway, his bean pole right hander.

The Cubs ranked as 7 to 5 favorites because of their admitted superiority in fielding, hitting and catching.

GRIMES ON MOUND FOR CARDINAL

MACK QUIET ON HILL CHOICE OF CHAMPS; A'S ARE FAVORITES

Card Second Baseman Not in Best Shape; Both Teams Confident.

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1—The world's series came again to Philadelphia today with the annual guessing contest between Connie Mack and the fans featuring the pre-game activities.

Everyone was trying to name the Athletics' starting pitcher against the St. Louis Cardinals, and only wise old Connie knew. Manager Mack had the last guess and promised to keep his own counsel until game time.

Manager Charles E. (Gabby) Street of the Cardinals has no secrets. He said "Grimes" in a loud voice and stuck to his story.

Early speculation hinged about Robert Moses Grove, the tall, slim, left-hander with the "high hard one," it being taken for granted that the home team would put its best foot forward at the outset, and then the guessers recalled that a year ago Manager Mack crossed the fans, the Cubs and even the Athletics themselves, by nominating Howard Ehmke, who had pitched only 55 innings all season, to try for the first game.

Other available sharpshooters of the Philadelphia staff include Eddie Rommel, who boasts a knuckle ball of rare excellence, and Rube Walberg, with blinding speed and sweeping curve. Even old Jack Quinn, a good cool weather hurler with a spitter, was mentioned.

Frisch in Bed

There was a flurry of excitement among Cardinal supporters when it was found at the last practice session of the National leaguers that Captain Frankie Frisch not only was not among those taking a final workout, but was in bed receiving treatment for lumbago.

Frisch hastened to reassure his friends by saying that his indisposition while temporarily annoying was by on means serious and he would be at second base when the first bag game started, at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Regarded as the mainspring of his team's offense and defense, back trouble forcing Frisch from the lineup would have sent the Cardinals into the series with all the National league in mourning.

The day of the first game found every member of the Athletics in the best of condition. George (Mule) Haas, out for a part of the season with injuries, was pronounced fit and ready.

Players on both teams today non-chalantly said that today's opening contest was "just a ball game."

President Hoover and his cabinet had a reservation for today's encounter.

"It's not every day, of course, that we can play before the president," said Manager Street, "and have him toss out the first ball. But even the chief executive will not excite us. We'll do our best and nobody can do any more."

Manager Mack made it clear that his "boys" were not inclined to hold their National league rivals lightly and expected the hardest kind of a battle.

Baseball stalwarts of other days assembled for the starting gun, former National leaguers seeing nothing but the Cards and the ex-American league players stringing along with the A's.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who retired undefeated as the "greatest player," was back from his Georgia hills to pick his old team to repeat. Nap Rucker, the Grove of his day when he was a southpaw for Brooklyn, coppered his fellow Georgian's bet by suggesting the Cardinals would break through the American league defenses as they did in 1926.

St. Louis Won in 26

National league partisans looked with pride on the Red Birds from Missouri as the series started. It was this same St. Louis team which won the last National league victory.

The Cardinals came from far in the rear to win the 1930 National league pennant. The Athetics have not been far away from first place at any stage of the last two campaigns and the struggle beginning today marked a contest between a team forced to the limit to beat back stern opposition in the league race and one able to hold its own with considerably less effort.

Few of the active participants in today's pageant were strangers to the classic. With the exception of the pitcher, the starting lineup of the Athletics was the same as the one sent against the Cubs at Chicago last year.

Taylor Douthit, Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey were in the 1926 and 1928 series with the Cardinals and Frankie Frisch played four times for the Giants and once for the Cards. Burleigh Grimes pitched for Brooklyn against Cleveland in 1920.

In First Series

Sparky Adams, George Watkins, Charley Gelbert and Gus Mancuso awaited their first whiff of world series powder, but all played great ball in the hard stretch drive of the Red Birds to a pennant when they had to stage the equivalent of world's series battle against the Cubs, Robins and Giants.

The full catching burden for the National leaguers has been tossed on the shoulder of the slim Mancuso, owing to an injury to Jimmy Wilson, but Mancuso, who was almost thrown to the minor league lions in the spring, has met the issue bravely.

Wittenberg May Boast Outstanding Ohio Team

By International News Service

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 1—T. W. "Bill" Stobbs, who is beginning his second year as head football coach at Wittenberg college here, should produce one of the best Lutheran squads that has been turned out for several seasons.

It is general opinion that if Wittenberg was still a member of the Buckeye I. A. A., from which it withdrew last December, Stobbs' eleven would make it plenty hot for Ohio U., and Ohio Wesleyan, the apparent leaders of the pack in the 1930 championship race.

But as Wittenberg mixes with only one of the Buckeye members, this year's team is regarded as one of the outstanding unaffiliated colleges in Ohio. And that's something to boast about.

Headed by Captain Bill Edwards, the fighting center, 14 lettermen are battling for berths on the fighting Lutherans' varsity. A goodly number of graduates from the 1929 freshman squad have bolstered the hopes of a winning aggregation somewhat.

Wittenberg tackles teams from five states and plays four contests at night. The season was successfully opened last Friday night when Lutherans defeated Georgetown, Ky., 21 to 0. The two teams met twice before, Wittenberg emerging the victors in both games with scores of 24-0 and 27-0.

Meet John Carroll

A more or less supreme test will be faced by Wittenberg next Friday night, when it stacks up against the Blue Streaks of John Carroll at Cleveland. Other opponents on the card are Washington and Jefferson, Oglethorpe, Xavier, Marshall, Cincinnati, Heidelberg and Dayton in the order named.

Probably the toughest game of the season is the affair with W. and J., Coach Stobbs' alma mater.

Bill Edwards, of Massillon, leader of the Lutherans for the second year, at center, Ike Trubey, of Dover, tackle, and Alex Kish, of Bucyrus, end, are the three big men on the Wittenberg line. Edwards was named all-Ohio guard in 1928 and was selected as the outstanding center in the state last year when he was shifted to that [illegible]. Kish was out last season because of injuries.

Pete Stobbs, of Wheeling, W. Va., brother of the coach; Charles Deleeg, Lorain, and Jack Walton, Cleveland, are battling for the other wing post.

Billy Price has copped the quarterback position with Carleton Kazmaier being groomed as his understudy. Halfbacks who are working hard for regular jobs are Stan Plummer, former Coshocton scholastic star; Colin Lanning, Bob Harmon, Upper Sandusky, and Click Peterson.

Doug Smith, Cleveland, veteran fullback, is being hard pressed by Tim Brewster, Akron sophomore.

Gauthier Strives For Better Offensive Play

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 1—Ohio Wesleyan's football team will work this week to improve its offense with the coaches demanding better interference and more drive in the backfield. Coach George Gauthier was well pleased with the defense which his men put up against the sturdy Marshall college eleven in their opening game.

Although the Bishops had a hard game Saturday they were sent into a scrimmage again Monday for the opening practice of this week. The Ohio Wesleyan squad got past its first game safely without injuries to the squad.

Sidelights on World's Series

BY BILL CORUM
International News Service Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1—President Hoover can't seem to escape the wet and dry issue. He will see the first game of the world's series here this afternoon in which Burleigh Grimes, a moist ball pitcher, will oppose one of Connie Mack's prohibitionists. Mr. Mack said last night that he hadn't yet decided who would conduct the noble experiment.

Connie is what is known as a psychologist. In baseball that means a man who keeps his mouth shut.

In spite of the hard times, Tom Shibe has bought a new phonograph record for the games at Shibe Park. Tom, as you no doubt recall from last year, is the man who employs a phonograph and loud speaker in lieu of the customary six-piece band which performs on state occasions in other major league parks. I am told Tom had a hard time picking out the tune he wanted on his new record, but finally hit on "Sing Something Simple." Mr. Shibe's favorite music is the clicking of the turnstiles.

You can put a ring around Joe McCarthy's name as the next manager of the Yankees. McCarthy has promised to talk with his friend Bobo Quinn in Boston before signing, but will tell Quinn he thinks New York offers a broader field for his talents. Joe is said to relish the prospect of leaving William Wrigley's Cubs for the Yankees because it will enable him to give up chewing gum for near-beer and horseshoe plug. An old Buffalo fourth ward boy by birth and training, McCarthy had a terrible time learning to chew gum in the first place.

May Not Last

Just met Frankie Frisch in the lobby of the Cardinal's hotel. "Will you play?" I asked. "Pinochle or poker?" he cracked back. That's the way the Red Wings feel about the series. Theres a lot of kidding going on among them.

Frisch has been suffering from an attack of lumbago and there was some question about his starting this afternoon. But it will take more than lumbago to keep him out of there. And, unless I miss my guess, the Athletics will wish he had more than lumbago before they see the last of him.

The A's would have a better chance if their manager had a little more experience. Connie has been managing them only 29 years. Mack and McGraw agree that the first 25 years as manager of the same team are the hardest.

Mickey (himself) Cochrane is authority for the statement that the American league champions can, and will, win the series with two pitchers—Grove and Earnshaw. It's a good trick, and they won't do it. Mickey says the more Earnshaw pitches the better he gets. Perhaps he means the better he gets for the Cardinals.

"I have never ridden a white elephant, but I'm pretty good on a saddle horse," admits Burleigh Grimes. Count Puccinelli, the Cardinal's substitute outfielder, is a distant cousin on the distaff side of Ping Bodie.

The Count and Ping used to roll rocks down telegraph hill, San Francisco, together. Puccinelli couldn't decide whether to be a prize fighter or a ball player, and finally compromised by becoming a pinch hitter. Because of Puccinelli and Ernesto Orsatti the Italian vote is solidly behind the St. Louis delegation.

Good news for Flatbush fans:

THE FORDHAM FLASH

St. Louis fans are anxiously awaiting certain word that Frankie Frisch, the Fordham Flash, is going to be in condition to last through a hard series. Frankie has been in bed for a day now undergoing heat treatments and massages in an effort to allay the lumbago which threatens to keep him from taking a part in the series. Frisch stoutly denies he will not be "in there" every day. If he is not it'll be tough for the Cards.

Lefty O'Doul and Fresco Thompson are slated for the Robins in exchange for Hendricks, Jakey Flowers and some other second stringer whose name escapes for the moment. Thompson will be a winner with a contending club, and O'Doul, who had his tonsils yanked yesterday, by the way, does pretty good wherever he goes.

No secrets, is Gabby Street's world series motto. "I intend to pitch Grimes today, Rhem tomorrow and Hallahan in the opener in St. Louis," says the ol' sergeant. "I havent made any special series rules for my boys. As long as they get back to the hotel by midnight and out to the park by noon the next day it's okay with me."

But Gabby had better be careful that those bold bad kidnapers don't get hold of Rhem again. I am in a position to assure that this series is a shooting match. The last man I saw before leaving New York yesterday was little Abe Attell, and he said he couldn't decide which team to bet on. Kid Mehle, navy coach and the only lefthanded second baseman ever to make the grade, is here to see his old roommate Street. The kid and Gabby roomed together when they were teammates on the San Francisco Seals.

Florida will have four capable ends this fall, including Joe Hall, Bradenton youngster, who finished third in the national A. A. U. decathlon championships at Pittsburgh

SHUTE LEADS OHIO OPEN GOLF TOURNEY BY SINGLE STROKE

1929 Champion Heavy Favorite To Again Win Title.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 1—Ohio's best golf professionals had a chance today to prove whether they could give Denny Shute one stroke at the half-way mark of a 72-hole tournament and then beat him.

The Brookside Country club star, playing over the Elks course, was a dominating favorite to defend successfully the title of Ohio open champion which he won last fall.

On that occasion Shute was two strokes behind Waldo Crowder of Cleveland at the end of 36 holes but he won by five strokes with a total of 291.

Crowder began the second half of the 72-hole tourney today with a total of 159, as compared with Shute's 147 which led the field yesterday.

Bob Shave too was all but out of it, being deadlocked at 159 with Crowder.

Jack Thompson was on a good position to challenge, having shot rounds of 76-78 yesterday for a total of 148, one stroke behind the leader. Tied with him was P. O. Hart of Marietta.

Back of them at 149, was Reggie Myles, stocky little Scotchman from Ashland Country club. Herman Flebig of Toledo, one of the first round leaders, had 150, while Eddie Williams of Cleveland and Jim Kenney of Toledo had 151.

Other first day leaders were Bill Livie, Cleveland, Len [illegible] Lima, and Clem Welchn[illegible] mouth, 153; Jock Collin[illegible] and Al Marchi, Urbana, Raklets, Youngstown, a[illegible] Lorms, Columbus, 155.

A National Necessity

Increased reader interest in Classified advertising has made the want-ad a national necessity instead of a local fancy as many people think.

In Marion the Classified columns of The Star have become natural market places for the disposal of necessities, they are also bureaus of service for those who desire to shop and buy.

Classified advertising is the most inexpensive form of newspaper advertising--for a few cents a room can be rented, a house sold, or a car converted into cash.

RALLIES OFFSET EARLY DECLINE

Corn Crop Larger Than Expected; Wheat Prospects Slightly Higher.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 1—Unofficial monthly crop estimates issued today indicated a decidedly large yield of corn than of late has been looked for. The prospective yield of spring wheat was slightly enlarged as compared with a month ago, and was in line with general expectations. Never the less, all grain prices averaged higher early today, in opposition also to sharp downturns of wheat quotations at Liverpool.

Big estimates of the use of wheat as feed, together with assertions that 7 per cent more car corn than normal is necessary to shell to obtain a 56-pound bushel, were factors tending to lift prices. Opening at ⅛ off to 1 cent higher, Chicago wheat sagged somewhat, but then scored gains all around. Corn started at ¾ decline to 1⅛ advance, and then showed general gains.

Estimates today of the use of wheat as feed for livestock this season ran as high as 170,000,000 bushels. Besides, feeding of new corn was reported as promising to be of greater proportions than ever before known. It was further noted that use of green corn for feed to substitute for the poor pastures has been unusually extensive and that according to the statement of one leading expert final husking returns would prove disappointing.

On the other hand, the average of today's monthly private estimates of the 1930 yield of corn pointed to a total production of 2,003,000,000 bushels as compared with a Sept 1, average of 1,961,000,000 bushels. It was stated that corn crop maturity has been hastened by dry warm weather during September making less damage from frost than was feared a month ago. Profit-taking sales both of wheat and corn on price bulges brought about reactions at times to the same as yesterday's finish or below, but both cereals displayed firmness on downturns. Oats swayed with wheat and corn. Provisions were easy, despite downturns in the value of hogs.

FILE SUIT TO REGAIN COLORADO OIL LANDS

Company Charged with Having Acquired Land in Illegal Manner.

By The Associated Press

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 1—Charging the Union Oil Co. of California with obtaining oil shale lands in western Colorado through "dummy filings," a suit has been filed in the federal court here in the name of the government to recover 200 acres of land in the Colorado oil shale field.

Filing the suit brings indirectly to the attention of the court charges made by Ralph S. Kelley, recently resigned head of the Denver bureau of the U. S. land office, of Connivance, in granting oil shale rights.

Kelley tendered his resignation to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur last Sunday and he immediately made public his allegations of "oil grabbing" in connection with the administration of Colorado oil shale lands.

MOVIE STARS IN FALL MODES

HOLLYWOOD BIDS FAIR TO OUTRIVAL PARIS AS STYLE CENTER

BEBE DANIELS FRANCES DADD MARY BRYAN JEAN ARTHUR JR.

By International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Hollywood just now is full of pictures. We do not merely refer to the movie variety, but to the much more beautiful pictures created by attractive women wearing the latest gowns and harmonious accessories that mark the opening of the new sartorial season. Although Hollywood is famous for its movies, its modes are just as important. For the film center is running Paris a close second in the creation and production of exquisite and original clothes. In fact, the sports clothes designed by Hollywood's leading designers are much in advance of any thing from abroad and are known to much influence the sports clothes mode all over the world.

Mark of Simplicity

Sports clothes are of tremendous importance in Hollywood for the very cogent reason that they can be worn the year around. And so the very elaborate afternoon frock and lavishly trimmed coat finds very little place in the wardrobe of most of the movie stars. Charming sports clothes, new and good-looking afternoon outfits, delightful dinner gowns and evening ensembles, magnificent evening dresses and wraps for important "openings," and elaborate hostess gowns and pajamas comprise the major part of the purchases of even the highest salaried and most popular movie actress. Of course, the screen demands that clothes of every type and style be worn, but the screen modes are quite another story, and an important one, for the designers must gauge the advance fashions, in order that the players be depicted in the current modes when the picture is released.

Blue Is Favorite Hue

The tailored suit is immensely popular in Hollywood, and the actresses addicted to the sports clothes mode are all blossoming out in immaculately tailored models to welcome the autumn. Blue with touches of white is one of the most popular color combinations everywhere, but Hollywood is particularly devoted to it.

A particularly becoming suit has been chosen by dainty Mary Brian, who wears a suit of blue covert cloth, accented with a trimming of white galyak. A blue and white hat, a matching pocketbook and blue and white gloves complete a happy autumn outfit that should be at home anywhere. Gray and beige are two colors that lead on the Hollywood color card for wear the year round, and Bebe Daniels, who is especially fond of gray, has had several suits and frocks made in various shades of this delicate hue. Blue, both light and dark, is another leading color.

Sumptuous Evening Modes

It is after dark that the really magnificent clothes are seen. The premier of an important picture is always the signal for series of visits to designer and dressmaker for clothes that are meant to be noticed and admired and, of course, envied. Soft velvets, lustrous satins, crisp taffetas, shimmering brocades, lovely crepes with gorgeous wraps trimmed with fox, sable, kolinsky and ermine become backgrounds for rich gems, artistically mounted. Frocks of white are worn with cloaks of blue or red velvet lavishly trimmed with white or silver fox. Slim ingenues wear lovely frocks of taffeta, screen sirens are true to form and wear slinky frocks of rich metallic brocade with ermine wraps, whatever the year or season. Soft pinks and blues are favored by the younger set for dinner and dance wear, and dresses in these hues, of soft crepes and chiffons, have been ordered for current autumn wear.

Tea Gown Reigns Supreme

Within the walls of Hollywood's gorgeous homes, the elaborate hostess or tea gown reigns supreme. Clinging draperies of heavy chiffon in soft shades, gold or silver lace in striking designs, lavish fur trimming and long trains are some of the details of the new Hollywood hostess gown. Devotees of the boudoir pajama have ordered this popular garment in rich velvets in striking colors. Many of these creations will be noticed in several productions soon to be released.
